Piloting His Pals

Many of the young men are dealing with their own level of struggles, internal scars, and sadness. These young men feel a sense of belonging in Walking Tall. They have acceptance, respect, and support from their mentors, as well as offering respect to the other young men. They are eager to serve where needed and enjoy playing basketball together when they are not working on their projects.

"The mentors have helped me improve because they care more about how we achieve our results and what we can work on during our projects. They also care about us and try to understand us instead of just giving us rules."

Jace

"I came from the woodshop, and I'm now in small engine repair, where they have taught me new skills. The mentors help us a lot, and they want us to succeed. They really care about everyone and help us with your problems. If you need help, just ask, and don't be afraid because they help."

Levi

"I am in the woodshop making pens as well as many other things. The mentors care about what we do and how we take what we're doing into our life. Walking Tall has helped me with lots of things as well as leading me toward what I want to do in life."

Aiden

And as you wish that others would do to you, do so to them.
