Unity in Numbers

It all started when a friend suggested we check out the Walking Tall youth program. I'm the father of eight kids and finding good outlets for my kids has always been a high priority. Knowing several mentors there, I, too, became a mentor. It's been an amazing program for me and my kids. I love this program and how it's doing great things. I've learned new skills that other mentors have to offer; the wealth of knowledge and experience they have is a blessing. I've helped with the construction projects around the facility, and we recently finished the sheet rocking in the new building. We have some youths who come in very introverted and shy, and it is impressive to see them get to know other you men in the program, branch out, and blossom in this program. —Mentor Travis

For we are God's handiwork, created in Christ Jesus to do good works,
