Connections

Some of my closest friends I met at Walking Tall. Mentor Jeremy, who is friendly and helpful, is on that list. He has been teaching me how to build a ukulele. Knowing how to make a small guitar-like instrument is fascinating, since I play guitar. I didn't know Jeremy before WT, but I started seeing him at my church and have become close to him. Also, Jonathan has been working on the ukulele, and we have been hanging out together. We have a lot of fun and hope to connect outside Walking Tall. When I get a ride home from Nehemiah and Isaiah's family, they stay later. This allowed me to know Tom better; he's a cool guy, and I'm more connected to him now. I am thankful for all my new friends at Walking Tall.

It's been a blessing to come here for free, get fed, and have materials to make something for myself and others. It makes me a happier person. Growing up in a Christian home has helped me. My pastor says you can either learn in the sanctuary or the storm, so I'm grateful for all the support in this complicated world. I've been coming to WT since April. I was initially intimidated, but it's been fun, and I've learned a lot. I used to get aggravated over dumb stuff, but the Bible says Jesus only got angry a few times. He was righteous in doing so but didn't have hatred in his heart. Trying to be more like that has helped me have self-control and be kinder to people. It's fun to bless people and see their reactions, like seeing God do good things for us.

WT helps keep me busy, and it helps me think about what I will do for a job when I get older. It's opened a new path for me. Thank you, Walking Tall.

I have said these things to you, that in me you may have peace. In the world you will have tribulation. But take heart; I have overcome the world.
