It is Well

Tom and I were asked to provide a weekly update. We are dedicated to our work at Walking Tall and focused on involving others in our mission. We have two lovely daughters and caring sons-in-law who have blessed us with three amazing grandsons whom we enjoy spending time with. However, we needed a getaway since we live on the same property as the ministry. The backbone of Walking Tall's success is the collaboration of mentors, volunteers, and community support, all while staying God-centered.

We received a kind invitation from our good friends to join them on a camping trip. The trip took place on their off-grid land, which spanned hundreds of acres, and coincided with the 4th of July. We went on adventurous walks through the woods to reach our friends' cabins for some fellowship. Our trailer was nestled in a serene spot, surrounded by beautiful blue skies, majestic pine trees, a tranquil creek, and a meadow where we were fortunate enough to spot a graceful sandhill crane. During our time there, we reflected on the sacrifices made for our freedom and appreciated God's grace and His creations.

We are grateful to God for giving us the wisdom to take a short break from our involvement with Walking Tall. We recognize that we are just freckles in this ministry's body, and it functions efficiently without us. While we love Walking Tall, we understand it's not about us. We focused on this peaceful natural setting to find solitude, to have our minds be still, quiet the world around us, and open ourselves to how God wants to speak to us.

Thank you, Walking Tall family!

It is well

Do not worry about tomorrow

It is well

Saying yes to His freedom

It is well

He will make your paths straight

It is well

He carried you on eagle's wings

It is well

He has plans to prosper you

It is well

Whatever is lovely

It is well

Love never gives up

It is well

God works for the good

It is well

Serve one another in love

It is well

I am with you always

The heavens declare the glory of God; the skies proclaim the work of his hands.

Psalm 19:1

Thank you for all your support and prayers!
