Real Life Struggles from an Anonymous Teenager

One evening at Walking Tall, they were discussing a challenging subject, which urged Boyd to ask Tom to step outside. With heavy emotions, Boyd confided in Tom that his uncle, the only man in Boyd's life who cared deeply about him had taken his own life. He's fortunate to have found support and guidance at Walking Tall. It's clear that he's been dealing with some heavy emotions, and it's understandable that he feels remorseful about his uncle's passing. Later that evening, it was heartwarming to see his friends offering comfort and laughter during tough times. Boyd, who grew up without a father figure, has found incredible support and guidance from his mentor, Dan. Dan has been teaching him about automotive work and praising his accomplishments in tearing down an engine. In the future, Boyd hopes to join the army or attend a trade school to further his knowledge in the automotive field. He plans to move to his hometown, to make life easier for his mom and to be closer to other families.

Boyd has shared that "Walking Tall" has provided him with a new perspective on life and has made him aware of the importance of focusing on his mental health. He's grateful that "Walking Tall" introduced him to God and the Bible, and as a result, he has been reading the Bible regularly.
