Shared Wisdom

In the automotive department of Walking Tall (WT), we have an outstanding mentor, Dan D. With extensive experience in the automotive industry, he skillfully shares his knowledge with the young men, who are always eager to hear about his race car. Dan is currently focused on enhancing the bus at WT, and he firmly believes it's a top-notch organization to be involved with.

About five years ago, Dan's friend, a mentor at WT invited him to get involved here. As a Christian, he feels that this was God's calling for him. Previously, he was involved with youth programs, but he felt something was missing in that area. He feels automotive is a skill that is lacking, and he is pleased to see that these skills are gradually being reintroduced in some schools, as they had not been taught for many years.

Dan finds the most rewarding aspect of the program to be the noticeable differences in these young men, especially compared to those he sees on the streets without respect. He is often surprised when a young man runs up to him, smiles, shakes his hand, and introduces himself, believing that these social skills will greatly benefit them.

Dan says, "I learn something new at every Walking Tall session, whether from mentors, biblical teachings, or the other young men who excel in other areas."

Looking ahead, Dan hopes for the expansion of Walking Tall, feeling that God is actively working within the group and that it has been a significant blessing in his life.

Teach me knowledge and good judgment,
for I trust your commands.
