WHAT DID THE SEMA TRIP MEAN TO YOU?

The most important part was spending time with all of you and having fun with Tim. I am very grateful for Judy and also for you, Tom. What you both did was a wonderful thing for all of us by making it possible to come to SEMA. David

I was impressed by bold believers in the industry like Antron Brown, Barry McGuire, and Bill Stuart. Meeting these influential people and discovering their innovative products was inspiring. They succeed in their careers while openly speaking out for Christ. The prayer breakfast event had a significant impact on me, showing how they balance their work and ministry. It's really cool. Tim

I loved being here and had a great time. It was such a fun group to be with. I am thankful that each of us could be here, including Rex, who had to leave early. It was a blessing to be part of the ministry on this mission trip and to share the gospel with young men and others. I'm thankful for the opportunity to take a break from work and be a light somewhere else. Chad

I enjoyed speaking with the professionals, which relieved much of my stress about starting my college research and choosing a career path. These conversations helped me narrow down my options and gain clarity about my future which was incredibly helpful. The welding experience was fun, and overall, the trip was fantastic. My biggest takeaway was how much it eased the stress of making college decisions and conducting research. Camden

My favorite part was SEMA; it was a wonderful experience. I'm grateful to everyone who made it happen—your efforts truly made a difference. I enjoyed resting in the comfortable bed and having conversations with people who didn't know about Christ; their reactions were eye-opening. A memorable moment was with the owner's son going down the wrong path at the pit who had a Bible verse on his NHRA drag car. I also appreciated planting a seed at Westen Champlin. Overall, I couldn't have done it without a better crew. Tristan

I'm grateful for everyone involved in bringing us together and for those high-end companies who live their lives for Christ, including the president of SEMA. Spending time with Rob and Claudia was a blessing as we helped individuals in their housing project transition away from addiction. Attending the SEMA event and meeting Peter Brock in person, the designer of the '63 Corvette, and more was incredible. I truly appreciated the opportunity to shake his hand. The invitation to come here made me feel blessed. Our time at their church and the prayer breakfast was filled with unforgettable moments. I felt God's presence throughout our time together and trust Him to bring us home safely. Dan

I'm thankful to all of you for letting us come on this trip, a little mission trip, as Chad would say. All the great things that happened during this trip, including SEMA and helping people out, and all that we learned, especially about Christ, definitely helped me, and I know it helped David. My favorite parts were SEMA and the Horsepower Rodeo, but that's just me; I'm a car guy. Griffin

The trip gave me an incredible opportunity to meet professionals in the automotive world, especially the crews of NHRA drag cars. I never expected to find such dedicated individuals in Las Vegas, and their hard work truly inspired me. This experience reinforced my desire to pursue a career in this field, and I'm grateful to Judy and Tom for making it unforgettable. Rex

This week has been a tremendous blessing for all of us. The young men especially enjoyed watching professional drivers burn their tires. I stayed with them, wishing I could be behind the wheel. Our experiences this week have been incredible, as we demonstrated what Christ can do for others. While in the mission field, let's continue this spirit of service. They say, "What happens in Vegas stays in Vegas," but I hope our message about Christ remains in the hearts of those we met. We have been truly blessed. Tom

Tom and I are grateful to Rob and Claudia for hosting everyone. Years ago, while in the automotive business, we built connections in the SEMA industry and became friends with its founder. We encouraged him to let us represent Walking Tall, embodying Christ in our work. Transitioning from business to Walking Tall has brought us unexpected blessings, and it warms my heart to see how well you all represent this mission. Judy

Thank you for your support and prayers!

Out of his fullness we have all received grace in place of grace already given. John 1:16
